COMMISSION ON GEOLOGY

Dr. Watson Has Report-Want to Paint Capitol Before Governors Come

Dr. Meade Ferguson, State Bacteriologist, and Dr. J. M. Magruder, the joint commission on sanitary conditions in the Potomac River. The commission is composed of representatives of Virginia, Maryland and the national Department of Agriculture.

While each group of investigators will have its report to make on the condition of the oysters and samples of water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters and water taken from the condition of the oysters an chemist of the Department of Agri-will have its report to make on the condition of the oysters and samples of water taken from the river on the recent trip, it is entirely improbable that any statement will be given to the public. Two more investigations are to be made, and it is expected everything will be kept secret until the entire series is completed.

Dr. Ferguson recealls clearly that it was mutually agreed that no member of the joint commission should make any statement or give any intimation of the joint commission should make any statement or give any intimation whatever of the result of the examina-tion. Therefore, the statement pub-lished last week in a Washington pa-per, was either manufactured or was given out in violation of the agree-ment, and therefore, in his judgment, accually unreliable. equally unreliable.

While the results of the chemists while the results of the clemsts and bacteriologists should be substantially the same, there is always the possibility of different results from the examination of two oysters taken side by side. This is why the examination is to be repeated twice.
